Historical note

For the first half century of the Academy's history the primary educational opportunities were copying of paintings in the galleries and drawing from casts or models. These activities were pursued by students in a somewhat self-directed manner. There were no organized classes with faculty present for set times. Students presented completed work for faculty critiques in informal settings. Prior to about 1855 the only documentation of student activity is the file of permits to copy paintings (see 1-B).

The earliest student enrollment records date from about 1856. The information is preserved in bound registers that run through 1904, and also cover 1923-29. About 1950, an alphabetical card file was created indexing student registrations through about 1929. The cards give only basic years of attendance. Where a register exists for the period in question, the actual months of attendance can be determined. The verso of the cards for the 1920s contains some biographical information. (It is not known exactly where student registration information for 1905-22 was found when these cards were made. One or more registers may be lost or our understanding of the origin of the cards may be incorrect.) In 1989 the registers were microfilmed. The card file was also filmed using a copy set of the cards in order to provide a separate card for the verso.

After about 1926, a file folder was maintained for each student. These files contain detailed information about student attendance, classes, correspondence, and biography (including transcripts, application forms and photographs). The files from ca. 1926 to 1949 are housed in the Archives. The student files for the period after 1950 are maintained by the registrar of the school. In accordance with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), no educational records of a living former student can be released without his or her consent.
