New York, N. Y.

Dear John,

I don't know whether this letter will catch up with you, for I've heard you were scheduled to get some kind of a State Department grant which would call for some traveling.

At any rate, I wanted you to know the good news that I finally sold the marble torso to an Italian collector, Dr. Bindo Rinaldi of Rome. The only piece of yours remaining now is naughty Salome.

It's a hot and sticky day and I'm loathe to make this letter too detailed unless I know I'll be able to reach you, so please let me know where and how you and Richenden are and if your travels will bring you to Rome.

With warmest personal regards to both of you,

Sincerely,

Robert E. Schneider
