

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY
EVANSTON, ILLINOIS

THE COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

April 15th

Dear friends,

I've been meaning to write to you for months, but have been so swamped that I never did get around to it. The Christmas visit in New York was a flop, socially; I was in the convention hotel all of the three days, and didn't get to see a soul. I was especially unhappy about missing you both. Maybe I'll get back some day when I'll have some time out for myself.

I did get to see the show at the Fairweather-Carnett Gallery, and thought it was fine. It was good to see some of the old pieces that I knew from Rome and many new ones that were entirely unfamiliar. Good stuff! They had them well displayed along with an exhibit of paintings, and they made a very good impression. How did it go financially?

My life has been complicated by the fact that I had an invitation to move permanently to the University of Chicago, and I finally accepted it. That means that I'll be pulling up stakes here in June, when I go to Europe again, and then setting up in a new apartment and new office and all that sort next Fall. Busy times.

No news on the Guggenheims yet, but I suppose that it will be out soon. I'm still keeping my fingers crossed for you.

Drop me a line when you have time and let me know how things are going. As always, my best to you.

Bernie