FOREWORD

Excellence is never granted to man, but as the reward of labour. It argues indeed no small strength of mind to persevere in habits of industry, without the pleasure of perceiving those advances; which, like the hand of a clock, whilst they make hourly approaches to their point, yet proceed so slowly as to escape observation. A facility of drawing, like that of playing upon a musical instrument, cannot be acquired but by an infinite number of acts. I need not, therefore, enforce by many words the necessity of continual application; nor tell you that the port-crayon ought to be forever in your hands.

There is one precept, however, in which I shall only be opposed by the vain, the ignorant and the idle. I am not afraid that I shall repeat it too often. You must have no dependence on your own genius. If you have great talents, industry will improve them; if you have but moderate abilities, industry will supply their deficiency. Nothing is denied to well directed labour: nothing is to be obtained without it. Not to enter into metaphysical discussions on the nature or essence of genius, I will venture to assert, that assiduity unabated by difficulty, and a disposition eagerly directed to the object of its pursuit, will produce effects similar to those which some call the result of natural powers.

THE PENNSYLVANIA ACADEMY OF THE FINE ARTS

The Pennsylvania Academy conducts the oldest schools in America devoted exclusively to the cultivation of the fine arts.

The Academy also conducts at Chester Springs, Chester Co., Pennsylvania, what is believed to be the best equipped Open-air Summer School in this country. For details see page 75.

During the one hundred and seventeen years of the Academy's existence it has aided in the training of many men and women whose names are illustrious on the pages of American Art. Among its former students are eminent painters—figure, landscape, and marine—mural decorators, illustrators, and sculptors of national reputation. Its history is in no small measure the history of American Art itself.

The schools are under the immediate care of a Curator and Committee on Instruction appointed by the President and Board of Directors, together with a Faculty composed of representative artists of the day, who are experienced teachers and eminently qualified to discover and develop every talent which students may possess.

The Academy engages its students at once and exclusively in the study of the Fine Arts, and aims to equip them with a thorough knowledge of Correct Drawing, Color Value, Composition, Modelling, Constructive Anatomy, and Perspective.

The Academy is equipped in every way to teach the technique of Painting and Sculpture, and the instruction it affords is fully equal from a technical standpoint to that obtainable in Europe.

Lectures of general and special interest are given during the year, and students may attend them without extra charge.

The Academy's Permanent Collection of paintings and sculpture is an important adjunct to the students' regular work.

The Permanent Collection includes the Gallery of National Portraiture; the Temple Collection of Modern American Paintings; and the Gibson Collection, largely composed of works of the Continental schools.

Copying in the galleries is permitted to students under reasonable regulations.

The Annual Exhibitions held by the Academy bring together the best examples of current American painting and sculpture, and enable students to follow intelligently the various movements of modern art, and to study the technical methods by which the art of today is achieving its results. These exhibitions have been recognized for many years as being the foremost in America. During the past year they included:

An Exhibition of Water Colors composed of 712 examples, representing 144 different artists;

An Exhibition of Miniatures composed of 131 examples, representing 61 different artists;

The Academy's 117th Annual Exhibition of Oil Paintings and Sculpture, composed of 427 paintings and 139 sculptures, representing a total of 369 artists. This Exhibition was opened to public view for seven weeks and visited by 43,145 people.

Special Exhibitions: An exhibition of 105 miniatures by members of the Royal Society of Miniature Painters of London, November 5th to December 10th, 1921.

An Exhibition of Famous Portraits of Famous People by Thomas Sully. 235 examples. April 9th to May 10th, 1922.

PACKARD PRIZE COMPETITION, 1922

FREE SCHOLARSHIPS

Through the generosity of Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice, twenty Scholarships in the Academy have been provided, entitling the holders thereof to free tuition.

Ten of them are in memory of William L. Elkins, and ten in memory of George D. Widener.

Through the generosity of Edward Bok, a scholarship is available from the "Philadelphia Prize," established for the Academy's Annual Exhibition.

Under the will of Mary R. Burton, deceased, another free scholarship is provided, and through the generosity of Mrs. George K. Johnson, the Sarah Kaighn Cooper Free Scholarship has been established.

The above Free Scholarships are available this year for returning students only, and are awarded solely for the purpose of financially assisting those who would otherwise be unable to pursue the study of art.

These Scholarships are awarded by the Board of Directors upon the recommendation of the Committee on Instruction and the Faculty of the Schools.

Jean N. Planigen

CRESSON COMPETITION GROUP (PAINTING) 1922

Applicants must fill in a prepared form and submit it together with examples of their work to the Curator of the Schools before September 21st.

This application must be accompanied by a letter addressed to the Committee on Instruction, stating in detail the necessity for requesting Free Tuition.

TRAVELLING SCHOLARSHIPS

So far as instruction is concerned, there is no necessity whatever for the student to leave America, but, by the liberal provision of the wills of Emlen Cresson and Priscilla P., his wife, a fund has been created, as a memorial to their deceased son, William Emlen Cresson, Academician, the income of which is to be applied by the Academy in sending its most meritorious students to Europe. The income is divided into scholarships of $500 each, awarded to the students impartially upon the merits of their work.

During the last year twenty-two students were awarded Cresson Scholarships.

OTHER PRIZES

Besides the Cresson Scholarships, other substantial prizes are offered to students as hereafter stated, and every incentive held out to them to develop their talents to the uttermost.

SOME ADVANTAGES OF LOCATION

The Academy building is located in the heart of Philadelphia, within one square of City Hall and within two or three blocks of the central city railroad depots. The new Parkway brings it within easy reach of Fairmount Park and 3000 acres of beautiful scenery. While it is convenient to the business portion of the city, it is also readily accessible to the residential districts. Philadelphia is often called "The City of Homes," and of all the greater American cities it is probably the most worthy of the name. Apartments and studios can be obtained by the year or by the month for reasonable rates. The cost of living is low.

The city contains, in addition to the Academy's own gallery, a number of notable collections of paintings which are accessible to students. Among the more important may be mentioned: The Wilstach Collection in Fairmount Park; The Lankenau Collection at the Drexel Institute; the important paintings at the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and at Independence Hall; the collections of the late John G. Johnson, and of Joseph E. Widener. Admission to Private Collections is obtained by appointment only.

To students attending the Academy, the Reference Library and the Galleries are free during the time of their attendance.

SPECIAL CLASSES

Open to all students without extra charge

Mr. McCarter's Class in Decorative Painting, Color and Composition

The Class in Decorative Painting, Color and Composition meets twice a week; once for lectures and illustrated talks; and again for criticism of work submitted. The object of the class is to study Decorative Design and Color Values, and to encourage the student to express courageously and forcefully his own impressions and conceptions.

Mr. Harding's Lectures on Constructive Anatomy

The Lectures on Anatomy begin in November. These Lectures aim to give the student a clear and practical understanding of artistic anatomy and are illustrated by drawings made by Mr. Harding during the lecture; many from a living model used for the purpose.

Mr. Harbeson's Lectures on Perspective

The Lectures on Perspective begin in November.

The Course consists of lectures upon the elements of linear perspective, shadows projected by artificial and natural lights and reflections, illustrated by drawings made before the class. Problems in drawing and painting from the solid object and from nature are given to the class at stated intervals. The principles of perspective as used by artists of various schools are demonstrated by lantern projections of their works.

Mr. Carles' Costume Sketch Class

The Costume Sketch Class is conducted throughout both terms, and meets Saturday mornings from nine o'clock until noon. Sketches from the living model are made in black and white, or in color.

Vladimir V. Perfilieff
 CRESSON COMPETITION GROUP (PAINTING) 1922

Tuesday Evening Sketch Class

A Sketch Class meets also on Tuesday evenings, from seven until nine o'clock, to work, without criticism, from a living model.

The chief object of the Sketch Classes is to teach students to grasp and record quickly the spirit and character of the subject presented.

Locker Rent	1

All new students must pay a matriculation fee of five dollars.

For students registered in the Academy's Philadelphia Schools during the season of 1919-1920 and continuously since then the tuition fee will remain as heretofore.

Promotion during a term, from one class to another, does not entail an additional fee.

No reduction is made to students who desire to take special criticisms, to work in the night classes only, or to work under one instructor only.

The payment of $75 a term for tuition, $1 a term for locker rent, and the matriculation fee of $5 covers all fees, but does not cover the cost of materials.

No reduction is made to students registering after a term has begun.

No extra charge is made for the use of models.

Tuition fees are not refunded for any cause whatever.

The Academy accepts checks in payment of fees but students are advised that all checks which they wish to have cashed in Philadelphia should be in the form of drafts on a Philadelphia bank.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND PRIZES

Travelling Scholarships

By the wills of Emlen Cresson and Priscilla P. Cresson, a Fund has been created as a memorial to their deceased son, William Emlen Cresson, Academician, the income of which is to be applied by The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts in sending pupils of merit to Europe.

During the past year the Academy awarded twenty-two Cresson Scholarships. Included in this number were thirteen painters, four sculptors, and five illustrators. These awards were made by the Board of Directors upon the recommendation of the Faculty.

The awards are divided among the Painting, Illustration and Sculpture Classes, and are based upon the number of pupils in each Class as one factor, and the standard of the work as another factor. The award heretofore has consisted of Five Hundred Dollars to each student to be expended in foreign travel and study, but, on account of the increase in travelling expenses the board of Directors made the following announcement at the close of the school year, 1922: "The awards have been proportioned in the past so as to provide each student with Five Hundred Dollars to expend in actual travel and travelling expenses, but on account of the increase in such expenses the Academy announces that all students going abroad this year will be given Two Hundred Dollars additional for each scholarship."

It is the intention of the Cresson Scholarships to give to the students of the Academy the advantage of seeing some of the important Galleries and Art Schools abroad, and the Academy desires to extend the benefit of the Scholarships to as many students as possible, provided they possess the necessary merit. The trip abroad is limited to the summer vacation, a period of four months, from June to September inclusive, so that students can return to the Academy for study during the ensuing school year. The Board of Directors, upon the recommendation of the Committee on Instruction, may, in case of exceptional merit, permit a student to receive a second Cresson Scholarship, with an award of $500. Unless some satisfactory excuse be accepted by the Committee on Instruction, a second competition must be during the year succeeding the first award.

The award of a Travelling Scholarship is not to be regarded as a certificate of proficiency. Students receiving an award for the first time are required to return to the Academy for further study after having travelled abroad in accordance with the terms of the award.

CRESSON COMPETITION GROUP (PAINTING) 1922

New students registering during the season of 1921-1922 and thereafter will not become eligible to compete for a Cresson Travelling Scholarship until they have completed twenty-four months of study in the Academy's Schools.

Students who have been registered previous to the season of 1921-1922 will be eligible to compete for a Cresson Travelling Scholarship after sixteen months of study in the Academy's Schools.

All students in competition for the Cresson Travelling Scholarship must be registered in the Philadelphia School for both terms of their Competition Year.

In estimating the total number of months necessary to qualify competitors, time spent at work at the Chester Springs Summer School will be counted.

Requirements Governing the Cresson Competition

All students entering the Competition are expected to register as Competitors before the first of November, 1922.

Work must be submitted each month by Competitors in the Painting, Sculpture and Illustration Classes for review. Competitors failing to submit work as required will be ineligible for receiving an award.

Drawings and paintings must not exceed thirty-six inches in either dimension.

The date for each review is posted on the School Bulletin Board at the beginning of every month. Students are not given credit for their work unless it is registered at the Curator's office on the dates specified and within the following time limits:

For a morning review, before 2.00 p.m. of the previous day.

For an afternoon review, before 9.30 a.m. of the same day.

For an evening review, before 12.00 noon of the same day.

Painters are required to register each month beginning with the November Reviews, work from the Figure in drawing or painting, from the Head in drawing or painting and, each term, one painting from Still-Life. All Paintings and Drawings from the Figure and Head must be from models posing in the Academy's Schools.

Illustrators are required to register each month beginning with the November Reviews, one head made from the model in the Illustration class and one drawing or painting, from the Figure from the model in the Life Class and, each term, one illustration.

Sculptors are required to register a composition each month (subject assigned), a study from the Figure and each term, one study from the model in the Head Class.

The same work can not be registered more than once.

Students failing to submit the required work for review place themselves out of competition, and can be reinstated only by action of the Faculty.

FIRST TOPPAN PRIZE, 1922

All competitors are unrestricted as to the amount and variety of work they exhibit in their Competition Groups, provided they do not exceed the space allotted to them, but no work will be considered eligible which has not been made during the current school season and registered in the Curator's office for one of the specified reviews.

All competitors must attend the series of lectures on Constructive Anatomy and must do the work required in the Perspective Class.

THE CHARLES TOPPAN PRIZES

The Charles Toppan prizes for 1923 are: first prize, $300, second prize, $200, and two honorable mentions of $100 each.

These prizes were established in 1881 by the gift of Mrs. Charles Toppan, Miss Harriette R. Toppan, and Mr. Robert N. Toppan.

The prizes are awarded only to students who have previously received a Cresson Scholarship. Competitors who fulfil all of the requirements for a second Cresson Travelling Scholarship will, at the same time be considered eligible to compete for a Toppan Prize. Competitors who are not in Competition for a Second Cresson Travelling Scholarship are required to submit each month during the year of competition two life drawings from models posing in the Academy, or two full-figure Antique drawings made in the Academy.

Any student having received one Toppan prize is debarred from receiving another Toppan prize of the same or lower value.

The work submitted in competition must be an original painting, in oil or water color, the unaided work of the student without criticism. All work in competition must be submitted without signature or mark of identification and must be presented on or before Saturday, May 12, 1923.

The subject assigned for May, 1923 is: "An Interior with one or more figures in which mere Portraiture is not the leading motive." No student may submit more than one canvas. Canvases submitted must not measure less than twelve inches nor more than thirty-six inches in either dimension, and must not be framed or glazed.

Canvases are numbered by the Curator, and a memorandum of the numbers and competitors' names are kept in a sealed envelope which is opened after the prize-winning canvases have been selected by the Committee on Instruction.

According to the positively expressed terms of the gift, the drawing of the work submitted will receive first consideration.

The Committee on awards is not obliged to award prizes or honorable mentions if, in its opinion, the work submitted is not of sufficient merit to justify making the awards.

SECOND TOPPAN PRIZE, 1922

THE THOURON PRIZES

The following awards, founded by the late Henry J. Thouron, a former Instructor in Composition, are made as follows:

A prize of $50 for a group of not less than three compositions upon subjects given to the class during the current season, and a prize of $25 for a second similar group, the first to be decided by the Faculty, the second by a vote of the students then working in the Schools; and one of $50 and one of $25, the first for general progress in study, the second for the work showing, in its treatment of said subjects, the most poetic, or abstract, or idealistic, point of view, both to be decided by the instructor of the class.

A competitor is not eligible a second time for the same prize, and cannot receive more than one award the same season.

In the event of not making the annual awards, or any portion of them, the money is to accumulate until it shall amount to the sum of $500. This sum will be awarded by the Faculty to the student submitting the best work in Composition upon a given subject. The intention of the award is to give the successful student a three-months' summer trip abroad, for the purpose of special study of Composition in specified places and galleries.

THE STEWARDSON PRIZE

The Edmund Stewardson Prize of One Hundred Dollars, in the Department of Sculpture, will be awarded for the twenty-first time at the close of the school year.

This is an annual prize, competed for by present students of the Academy with such pupils of other art schools as may be approved by the Committee on Instruction. Having once received this award, a student becomes ineligible for further competition.

The subject for the competition is a full-length figure from Life in the round.

None except the competitors are admitted to the competition room at any time during the days of the competition, and none except the members of the Jury are present during the judging of the studies.

Studies must not be less than two feet six inches in height, and not more than three feet in height, and must be made within eighteen hours, during three consecutive days, in six sessions of three hours each.

Each competitor draws a number by lot. This number determines the competitor's position in the competition room and a corresponding number is placed upon an envelope which contains the competitor's name and is deposited sealed, with the Secretary of the Academy. Upon completion of the work the competitor places a corresponding number upon the study to be submitted to the Jury of Award.

The Jury of Award consists of three professional sculptors, having no official connection with the Academy, or school or schools whose pupils may have taken part in the competition. When the successful number has been announced by the chairman of the Jury, the Secretary, in the presence of one or more of the officials of the Academy, opens the envelope bearing that number and announces the name of the successful competitor. If no study be satisfactory to the Jury, the prize may, in their discretion, be withheld. When no award is made, the amount of the prize may, in the discretion of the Board of Directors of the Academy, be added to the principal of the prize fund, or distributed with future prizes.

The clay models offered in competition must be kept standing in good condition until otherwise ordered, and figures cast by the Academy become its property.

The competition for the year 1923 takes place on March 5, 6, and 7.

THE STIMSON PRIZE

In memory of Emma Burnham Stimson, a fund has been created for the award each year of a prize in sculpture of $100.00 for the best work done by the students in the regular course of the class.

The contest is open to students who have been registered for three terms and who are members of the Life Modelling Classes, but is not open to former students who work in the class by special permission. Time spent at work in the Sculpture Classes at the Chester Springs Summer School, not exceeding four months, will be counted.

The subject for competition is a full-length figure from life, in the round, not less than 2 feet 6 inches in height, and must be made during class hours as a part of the regular work in the class.

The work must be submitted anonymously to a jury appointed by the Committee on Instruction of the Board of Directors. The jury must not include any instructor in the School.

The contest for the year 1923 takes place during the months of January and February.

chairman of the Academy's Committee on Instruction, annual prizes of $30 and $20 are awarded for the best and second best groups of original studies made from living animals. These prizes are open to all students of the Academy who have registered for both terms of the school year. A student having once received a prize becomes ineligible to receive the same prize a second time.

THE RAMBORGER PRIZE

From the income of a fund established by the late William K. Ramborger, Esq., as a memorial to his sister, Aspasia Eckert Ramborger, who for some years was a student of the Academy, an annual Prize of $25 is awarded for the best drawing in black and white of a head from life by a pupil of the Academy who has not been under instruction over two years, but who has been registered in the Academy for both terms of the school year. Each competitor may submit one unmounted drawing. Having once received an award, a student becomes thereafter ineligible to compete again.

THE CHARLES M. LEA PRIZES

The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts holds a Special Exhibition of Drawings by Students of American Art Schools in November, 1922.

Through the generosity of Charles M. Lea, a First Prize of two hundred dollars, a Second Prize of one hundred and fifty dollars and a third prize of one hundred dollars are awarded respectively to the best, the second best and the third best drawings.

Drawings eligible for competition must be executed by students regularly enrolled in any American School of Art which has a faculty of at least two instructors.

A competitor may not submit more than two drawings

The drawings must be upon white paper eighteen by twenty-four inches in size and unframed.

The subject must deal with the human figure, either singly or in composition, and be executed in black and white by pen, pencil or hard crayon, but not in chalk or charcoal. The awards are based upon the precision, accuracy of delineation, proportion, detail simplicity, and picture quality of the drawings submitted.

Members of the Jury of the Academy's Water Color Exhibition make the awards. They may withhold any or all prizes if in their judgment the drawings are not of sufficient merit.

THE ACADEMY'S FREE-HAND DRAWING PRIZES FOR THE HIGHER SCHOOLS OF PHILADELPHIA AND VICINITY

The Directors of The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts have established a system of prize awards for original Free-hand Drawing by students of the higher schools of the city of Philadelphia and vicinity. The purpose of making these awards is to stimulate interest in Free-hand Drawing, to discover those who possess marked talent, and to offer them the advantages of study at the Academy.

A first prize of $10 and a second prize of $5 are awarded by the Academy upon the recommendation of the instructor of the school where made, for the best and second best drawings by regularly enrolled students of each school.

The drawings must be made free-hand from a cast or other object assigned by the instructor, and must be the unaided work of the student, without criticism.

The drawings must be made with lead pencil, charcoal or crayon on white paper 19 inches by 25 inches in size.

The drawings may be made at any time during the months of March and April, but must be submitted to the instructor of the school where made, and the prizes announced before the thirtieth of April.

The two prize drawings from each school must be sent to the Secretary of The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, Broad and Cherry Streets, Philadelphia, not later than May 15th. The Faculty of the Academy will then judge the drawings submitted, and award the final prizes as follows:

$25 for the best drawing; $15 for the second; and $10 for the third.

All entries must have the following information legibly written on the back: name of the competitor; address to which it is to be returned; name of the school in which the student is working, and the signature of the Principal of the school.

It is hoped that these awards, and the stimulus they afford, will lead to a closer sympathy between the art instruction in the city's higher schools and the work of the Academy itself.

THE WASHINGTON BUILDING : CHESTER SPRINGS SUMMER SCHOOL

THE ACADEMY'S SUMMER SCHOOL AT CHESTER SPRINGS

The Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts owns a tract of 40 acres at Chester Springs, Chester County, Pennsylvania, where it conducts an open air school for instruction in Drawing, Painting and Sculpture.

Chester Springs is seven and one-half miles northwest of Phoenixville on the Pickering Valley Railroad. It is a beautiful little village, with postoffice, schools, stores and churches. The population is purely native American.

The Academy's property is one-quarter of a mile from the station. It is about 300 feet above mean ocean tide level, supplied with electric light from Phoenixville and reached in about one hour and thirty minutes by train service from the Reading Terminal at Philadelphia. It is north of the village, surrounded by typical Pennsylvania farm land, the scenery of which is enriched by gently rolling hills and by Pickering Creek with its meadows and valleys. It is at the foot of a hill rising to the north over 500 feet, and includes a number of buildings upon the hillside, affording ample studio room, and separate dormitories for men and women.

THE BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

The men's building, known as the Washington Building, is a large three-story stone structure, 146 feet long, with airy dormitories on the second and third floors, private rooms for those who want them, and contains on the first floor the main kitchen and general dining room.

The women's building, known as the Lincoln Building, is also three stories in height, is 88 feet long, with similar airy dormitories on the second and third floors, and with private rooms, and contains on the first floor a library and reading room used by all of the students. It is about 60 feet to the eastward of the Washington Building. Both are near the public road.

Across the road from the Lincoln Building, and slightly to the east of it, stands the New Studio, a substantial stone building, the dimensions of which are 42 by 37 feet. One large studio occupies the whole upper floor. It is lighted by a north sky-light and contains a large stone fire-place for use on cool or rainy days in spring or fall. A balcony opening on the south side affords an extended view of the meadow through which runs the Pickering Creek.

In the basement of this building is another room, which also contains a large stone fire-place. In the meadow below the New Studio Building are tennis courts and near these are the croquet grounds.

About 130 feet back of these two dormitory buildings, and up the side of the hill, is the main Studio Building, 78 by 49 feet, which has upon the first floor a theatre or lecture room with dressing rooms for men and women, and upon the second floor one large studio used by the students in common, and several smaller ones, affording together ample space for all the students to work indoors in wet weather.

The old Kimberton Road, upon which the dormitories face, joins in front of the property, with the White Horse Road leading down to the village. From the dormitory buildings there is a long covered walk up the hillside to the Studio, so that students are protected during wet weather. Further west on the Kimberton Road, about 160 feet, is the Bungalow, affording additional dormitory accommodations.

On the opposite side of the Kimberton Road, at its junction with the White Horse Road, is the Faculty Building, a double stone residence, used to accommodate resident teachers, and conveniently near the main dormitories. Directly across the Kimberton Road, is a large and quaint one-story frame building called the Art Gallery, used by the students to exhibit their work and in which are accommodations for washing palettes and brushes and for making frames.

In the meadow below the Faculty Building is the New Bath House and Swimming Pool. It is of concrete construction and enclosed by a wall eight feet high. The dimensions of the building are 125 feet by 30½ feet. At the west end are dressing rooms for the men; while at the east end there are dressing rooms for the women. All the dressing rooms are provided with clothes hooks, benches, mirrors and shelves to hold the toilet articles.

The Pool itself is 87 feet long by 21 feet wide. At its deepest end under the diving board, it is 7 feet deep; while at the shallow end it is 4 feet, 3 inches deep for the use of those who do not swim. The Pool is fed by the waters of the Pickering Creek, the level of which has been raised above the pool by a dam. The sheet of water formed by the dam is a picturesque addition to the landscape. The out-of-door portrait class sometimes poses a model in a boat on the dam. The dam is 125 feet wide and about 400 feet long, and over the breast the water of the creek falls upon a series of steps.

THE MAIN STUDIO AT CHESTER SPRINGS

In the centre of the meadow, below the Washington Building, is the famous Yellow Spring. Its waters are so heavily charged with iron that they color the stones of the run leading from the spring. It gave the locality the ancient name of the "Yellow Springs."

The drinking water for all of the buildings descends by gravity from a spring rising near the top of the hill, the water being conducted by a piping system into concrete reservoirs, which can be augmented by an auxiliary system, permitting water to be pumped to the reservoirs from another spring, known as the Diamond Spring, situated in the meadow far from the buildings, and the water of which is of singular clearness and purity.

The countryside is remarkably paintable, with many attractive old dwellings, quaint barns and spring houses, with old trees, abundant woodland, creeks and ponds, and with beautiful views near at hand. Directly in front of the Washington Building is a grove of sycamores of great age, and back of it is one of the largest sycamores in Pennsylvania, possessing a mighty spread of limb and containing in one of its large arms the iron prongs, now almost covered with bark, which were used in the olden days for suspending the bell to call the guests to dinner, when the Washington Building was used as an inn.

The chief object of the Academy in establishing a summer school in the country is to supplement the work done during the Winter in its Philadelphia schools by instruction in painting and Sculpture in the open air, and to afford an opportunity for the study of art to school teachers and to others who cannot spare time for study except during the vacation months.

The methods of instruction are substantially the same as those used at the Academy in Philadelphia, special attention, however, being paid to landscape drawing and painting, to figure painting in the open air, and to the study of sunlight and shade. Students are taught to make "studies" of nature rather than "sketches," and are also taught to carry on their work as far as their abilities permit.

The general method of instruction is by individual criticism of work submitted. The instructors will, from time to time, work with the students for the purpose of assisting them in the selection and interpretation of their subjects.

THE NEW SWIMMING POOL

CRESSON TRAVELLING SCHOLARSHIPS

To compete for Cresson Travelling Scholarships students must be registered for six terms in the Academy's Schools. In estimating this period, time spent at work at the Summer School will be counted, but no student will be eligible to compete who is not registered in the Philadelphia Schools for both terms of the competition year.

PRIZES

A Prize of $100 is awarded for the best landscape drawing or painting done at the Chester Springs School by a regularly enrolled student of the Academy, or by a student of the Chester Springs School who shall have studied there for not less than one month; a second prize of $50 for the second best, and a third prize of $25 for the third best. These prizes are awarded about December 6th. Work done by arrived artists, who may be working at the School, is not eligible.

CRITICISMS

Criticisms in the Drawing and Painting classes are given from time to time by different members of the Faculty: by Fred Wagner in April, May, June and September; by George Oberteuffer in June, July and August, and by Daniel Garber in July, August and September. Criticisms in the Illustration Class are given by George Harding in June, July, August and September, and by others as may be arranged.

Criticisms in the Sculpture classes are given by Albert Laessle in June, July, August and September.

ENROLLMENT

During the summer of the School's fifth year, which began in April, 1921, there was a total enrollment of 215 students. One hundred and forty-three of them had never studied at the Academy in Philadelphia, and 19 of them afterwards became students in the City, taking the regular winter courses. These 215 students were not all present at any one time. During April there were 4; May, 28; June, 71; July, 118; August, 135, and September, 102.

The students came not only from Pennsylvania, but from far distant points: from New York, nineteen; District of Columbia, twenty-four; Louisiana, two; Texas, three; Virginia, two; New Jersey, nine; Massachusetts, eight; Indiana, two; Missouri, two; Arizona, two; Ohio, twenty; Maryland, nine; Georgia, three; Delaware, four; California, one; Arkansas, one; South Carolina, five; England, two; Italy, two; Canada, one. These are instances merely to illustrate the cosmopolitan character of the attendance. Among our students were a number of art instructors who came to take advantage of our landscape work.

RATES

The intention of the Academy is to accept serious students only and not those who simply desire an advantageous place to board in the summer.

The rates are as low as possible, since they include both board and tuition. But these rates do not include the expense of clothing-laundry and materials for drawing, painting, and sculpture. The latter may be purchased at the school store.

The rates for board and lodging, including tuition, vary from $15.00 a week, for students living in the dormitories, to $18.00 a week or more, where private rooms are required.

Rooms may be reserved at any time but such reservations must be again confirmed by letter which will reach the school ten days before the date arranged for occupancy. Otherwise the management will be at liberty to dispose of the room.

EQUIPMENT

The equipment of the school affords ample studio room, and includes separate dormitory buildings for men and women, an Exhibition Hall and a Swimming Pool.

The buildings are supplied with hot and cold running water and with electric light.

The Reading Rooms are supplied with current magazines and a library of several hundred volumes. The Recreation Hall is provided with a stage, footlights and dressing rooms.

REQUIREMENTS AND RULES

Satisfactory references are required from all applicants, and as the students live in the buildings, conformity with reasonable regulations is necessary to secure proper chaperonage. Students are expected to know how to conduct themselves from principles of honor without specific rules.

Students are not allowed to smoke in the Studios or Dormitories.

No student is admitted for a shorter stay than four weeks except by the special consent of the Manager.

No student under 16 years of age is eligible for admission.

EAST WALL, GALLERY A
From the Fifth Annual Exhibition

“‘He is great who is what he is from nature and who never reminds us of others.’ The secret of the highest power is simply the uniting of the outer agencies of Expression with the Power that works from within. Are you a painter? Then in the degree that you open yourself to the power of the forces within, will you become great instead of mediocre? You can never put into permanent form inspirations higher than those that come through your own soul.”

—Ralph Waldo Trine
